Community Vigil on December 6th
National Day of Remembrance and Action on Violence against Women

In honour of the National Day of Remembrance and Action on Violence Against Women, our community's Advocates and Youth for Dignity participants together are hosting a vigil on Friday, December 6th 2019.

December 6th marks the anniversary of the deaths of 14 students at l'École Polytechnique de Montréal who were targeted and murdered by a gunman in 1989, because he hated women and resented these young women for being accepted into engineering school. This hatred is known as misogyny and is often the reason why men kill women.

In Canada, a current or former partner murders a woman every six days. Indigenous women's organizations have reported that, over the last several decades, up to 4,000 Indigenous women are missing or have been murdered. We all have a role to play in building a culture of dignity and respect and taking action to ensure that these tragedies never happen again.

The community vigil will honour the women whose lives have been cut short by violence, the 14 young students in Montreal, and the 42 Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women in the Yukon.

Project Management Skills Training - Summary of Session 2

During session one of the project management course held in November, participants learned about what project management is and about the project management process. Participants also explored the soft skills associated with project management and learned more about their own skill strengths and preferences while exploring the first two phases of the project management process through a group case study of a live project with a real client from the community.

In session two, we'll continue to explore the various project management knowledge areas supported by self-awareness and opportunities to learn by doing in a supported environment. Building upon the skills gained during session one, we will continue in our training format of providing fun, interactive activities to introduce new skills and facilitate self-discovery supported by overviews of the project management knowledge areas that we'll apply to enhance the depth of our case study project for session two.

We'll take a deeper look into risk management and risk mitigation planning and add depth to the foundational work planning skills that we introduced during the first session. We will also explore key performance indicators and ways to evaluate the results of our project plans.

Finally, students will be provided with an introduction to project reporting enhanced by practice of these newly-learned skills in a supported environment. Moving into session three, students will take on a personal project to be completed prior to the start of the third session in the training.

Session two of the three separate 5-day sessions of the Project Management Skills training course will be offered during the week of January 13-17, 2020 beginning at 9 am at the Yukon College.
